More Affordable Homes On the Way

East Boro Housing Trust is currently underway with another new build development to provide more affordable housing for adults with learning disabilities in need of Supported Living accommodation.

The development at Christopher Crescent in Poole, Dorset, will provide four units of self-contained accommodation. The one-bedroom flats and addition of a new ground floor communal conservatory room are scheduled for completion by building contractors Parsons and Joyce in mid-March 2008.

East Boro Housing Trust, a member of the Source Development Partnership Consortium, purchased the land for the new build from the Borough of Poole in 2007. The new site will provide disability adapted self-contained units and long term homes for future tenants. The Housing Corporation supported the development with a capital funding contribution of £226,000.

Chief Executive Kevin Hodder says "This new build demonstrates the continuing demand and need for the provision of social housing, especially for those with learning disabilities in the Borough of Poole. The support from the Borough Council as well as the Housing Corporation is enabling East Boro to help meet this demand."
